Policy of appeasement with Iran regime has totally failed – Lord Fraser

BOI - In a meeting with Mrs. Maryam Rajavi, President-elect of the National Council of Resistance of Iran, Lord Fraser of Carmyllie, former cabinet minister in Margaret Thatcher's government and Scottish Solicitor General, expressed his support to the Iranian Resistance and reiterated that the policy of appeasement with the Iranian regime has totally failed and it worked against Iranian people.

Lord Fraser who represented the United Kingdom at the Strasbourg's Human Rights Court and Europe's Court of Justice, stressed that People's Mojahedin Organization of Iran was labeled as a terror group in response to Iranian regime's demand while majority of the British Parliament are against this designation.

He also expressed his support to Mrs. Rajavi's third option for democratic change in Iran through people and their organized resistance and reminded that many of his colleagues from all three major political parties in both houses are campaigning to remove the terror label against the PMOI.
